

I prefer using GUI when organizing and managing my files. Both are great, however, I like the fact that while using GUI I can have windows open that allow me to view, control, manipulate, and toggle through multiple programs and folders at the same time. While using command-line users only need to utilize a keyboard to navigate the interface, often resulting in faster performance. This is also a very efficient and nice way to manage folders and files because it is faster.